

YOUR PREGNANCY CARE RECORD

BadgerNotes is an online portal and app that allows you to access your maternity records over the internet through your computer, tablet device or mobile phone.

The information that you view is generated in real-time from your hospital-based maternity system record, using details entered by your midwife or other health professionals involved in your care.

BadgerNotes directly links to BadgerNet's Maternity Notes, a new digital system that is replacing our old handheld paper notes in Cardiff and Vale UHB.

Using Badger Notes for the first time?

1. Search for the Badger Notes app in the App Store or Google Play store and download onto your device. Alternatively you can go to: www.badgernotes.net
2. Create an account using your email address and the passphrase given to you by your midwife – this will usually be your date of birth followed by the letters 'cav', in the format DDMMYYYYcav (for example a DOB of 24th of October 1990 would give the passphrase '24101990cav').
3. You will receive a text message containing a verification code, input the code when prompted and you will be asked to set up your own unique password.
4. If you are using a mobile app you will be asked to create a PIN code for quick access to the app when logged in.
5. You have now successfully created your account! See the next page for tips on using the portal and app.

Used Badger Notes before?

1. Log in using your existing details.
2. Select the option to 'Add a Care Record' from the menu and enter your new passphrase to add your new pregnancy record to your account.
